Dear A&M System Training Coordinators,

Four new courses related to workplace and campus safety have been added to TrainTraQ. They are:

- Shots Fired - provides guidance for surviving an active shooter situation in the workplace (course no. 2111114)
- Shots Fired on Campus - provides guidance for surviving an active shooter situation on campus (2111160)
- Flash Point - provides guidance for identifying and addressing Behaviors of Concern early as a way of preventing violence in the workplace (2111161)
- Flash Point on Campus - provides guidance for identifying and addressing Behaviors of Concern early as a way of preventing violence in campus (2111162)

Each course consists of a video and a quiz, based on content provided by a vendor (Center for Personal Protection & Safety). The quiz is intended as a review tool; no score is recorded, but employees will need to finish the quiz to get credit for completing the course.

We do not currently plan to require this training at the System level. However, individual System members may choose to require their employees to complete one or more courses. Please work with the Chief of Police or Safety Officer for your System member to determine how best to use these courses at your university or agency. If you need assistance with assigning these courses to employees, please let me know.

The System contact for the course is Gary Jackson (GLJ@tamu.edu, 979-458-6330). Gary also sent DVDs of these course materials to all the chiefs of police last week.

Please let me know if you need more info.

Regards,

Pat
